

Trinity Trust Gift Announcement Tuesday Morning

From those wonderful Trinity Trust people, word has just come in that the final bows are being tied on their latest gift. Details of the gift will be revealed including the donor and details about the final establishment and new name of Dallas CityDesign Studio.

What the heck is the Dallas CityDesign Studio? Housed in Dallas City Hall, the Studio will work collaboratively to advise, plan, and consult with public and private entities on the importance of urban design in the 21st century Dallas. This resource center at City Hall will engage, advise, and support work focused both outside the levees, particularly as potential development occurs, and on the Trinity River Corridor Project.

Just wait until Tuesday when the names and details are revealed at 10 a.m. in the Flag Room of City Hall. In the crowd will be the Trinity Trust team members, city officials, and reps from the American Institute of Architects Dallas and the Real Estate Council.

posted by Jeanne Prejean | October 5th, 2009 8:00am | filed under Announcement, Bridges | 1 Comment »

From corporate sponsors and dedicated volunteers to those in need of assistance, SweetCharity is an ongoing conversation about the people, organizations, and activities involved in Dallas philanthropy.

Search

Go

Subscribe via RSS (What is RSS?)